Pavillon de l'Arsenal

Paris, France

The Pavillon de l'Arsenal presents the winners, the 74 finalists and 358 projects submitted by multidisciplinary teams that participated in the competition 'Réinventer.Paris', a call for innovative proposals for the Paris of tomorrow.

Architects, landscape architects, urban planners, real estate agents and engineers - but also entrepreneurs, farmers, chefs, anthropologists, artists, philosophers, fashion designers, manufacturers, energy companies, associations and residents all took part and have collectively rethought the entire process of making a design proposal.

Dealing with programmatic, constructive, social, architectural, environmental, technological, legal and financial issues, the exhibition shows the remarkable diversity of the proposals, including concepts of aquaponics, participatory design, co-construction, nudging, reuse of materials, photovoltaic, biofaçades, paper bricks, active tiles, urban farms, co-working or co-living, home offices and urban campsites.
